WENDELL

Martin Luther King Day concert
The Wendell Community Chorus, New Salem's Moonlight and Morning Star, Senagalese drummer Abdou Sarr, and a community read-aloud of the children's book I Have a Dream by Kadir Nelson will be part of the Martin Luther King Day celebration on Monday, January 19, from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Wendell Town Hall, 6 Center St. in Wendell. This celebration for all ages is focused on Dr. King's message of joy and community resilience and unity. Moonlight and Morning Star will transport you with their soaring voices, conveying their deep reverence and commitment to social justice. Abdou Sarr will drum and lead a lesson in Senegalese dance. Dance participation is optional and no experience is required. Abdou makes it fun for everyone who wants to try it out, and chairs will also be arranged for the option of observing the beautiful dance. We will celebrate the life and teaching of Dr. King and our rich collective cultural heritage together. Donations are welcome at the door.

Massachusetts Reports Very High Flu Activity with Cases Climbing

Pediatric deaths underscore urgent need for vaccination and preventive measures

BOSTON (January 5, 2026) – The Massachusetts Department of Public Health (DPH) is reporting very high and rising levels of influenza activity statewide as the Commonwealth moves through peak flu season. Thousands of residents have become ill, forcing them to miss work, school, and other activities. Many are experiencing serious complications, leading to increased visits to urgent care centers and emergency departments, and high levels of hospitalization.

The current widespread burden of illness underscores the importance of taking preventive measures, especially vaccination, to reduce severe disease and protect individuals, families, and communities.

Tragically, influenza has already been reported to be associated with the deaths of three pediatric patients in Massachusetts during recent weeks. In addition, there have been 29 adult influenza deaths reported so far this season. While COVID-19 and respiratory syncytial virus (RSV) rates currently remain low, cases of both illnesses are beginning to rise. DPH is reviewing two possible COVID-19-associated deaths and one RSV-associated death in individuals younger than 18 years.

“This is a moment for clarity, urgency, and action,” said Public Health Commissioner Robbie Goldstein, MD, PhD. “These viruses are serious, dangerous, and life-threatening. We are seeing children who are seriously ill, families grieving devastating losses, and hospitals under capacity strain. There is a simple, effective, and available way to address these concerns: vaccines. They can prevent serious illness and hospitalization. And they save lives. If you have not yet been vaccinated against flu or COVID-19 this season, now is the time. It is not too late. Choosing vaccination is choosing to protect yourself, your family, your friends, your colleagues, and your community.”

Hospitals across Massachusetts are continuing to see high numbers of patients seeking care for respiratory illness. Each day last week, there were nearly 9,000 emergency department visits statewide, with approximately one-quarter of those related to acute respiratory illness, including flu, COVID-19, and RSV. Some regions in the state reported challenging hospital capacity levels exceeding 90% in medical-surgical units, largely related to influenza.

DPH urges everyone 6 months of age and older to stay up to date on flu and COVID-19 vaccinations. These annual shots can be given at the same visit and are available from local boards of health, community health centers, pharmacies, and many health care providers.

Vaccination is especially important for people at higher risk of severe disease, including adults age 65 years and older, children between 6 months and 2 years old, people with chronic respiratory conditions or heart disease, individuals who are immunocompromised, and people who are pregnant. Vaccination also helps protect family members, coworkers, and others in the community who may be more vulnerable to serious illness.

Massachusetts Reports Very High Flu Activity with Cases Climbing Continued

For RSV, one-time immunization is recommended for adults age 75 and older, those aged 50-74 who have conditions that put them at increased risk, and people who are pregnant. For infants and children, parents should talk with their child's health care provider about RSV immunization. It is recommended that infants younger than 8 months be immunized if the birth parent did not receive the RSV shot during pregnancy. Children between 8 and 19 months who are at increased risk because of certain pulmonary or immune system disorders should also be immunized.

In Massachusetts, vaccines are covered by insurance and are available at no cost for almost all adults. All vaccines for individuals younger than 18 years are supplied free of charge to health care providers through the state's universal childhood immunization program.

For those who begin to experience flu symptoms – which include high fever, chills, muscle aches, headache, extreme fatigue, cough, sore throat, and congestion – antiviral medications, such as oseltamivir (Tamiflu), are available by prescription. When started early, these medications can significantly reduce the severity of illness. Parents are encouraged to seek medical advice promptly if they or their children develop flu-like symptoms.

Spending time indoors and around larger groups increases the likelihood of exposure to respiratory viruses. The following everyday measures can help prevent illness:

- Stay up to date on flu and COVID-19 vaccinations
- Wash hands frequently with soap and water
- Stay home when sick
- Cover coughs and sneezes
- Consider wearing a mask in crowded indoor settings, especially if you or a loved one is at higher risk.

DPH continues to closely monitor respiratory activity and hospital capacity across Massachusetts. Up-to-date data are available on the DPH respiratory virus dashboard.

DPH Guidance on Recommended Reference Materials for Pediatric Immunization Schedules

The Massachusetts Department of Public Health (DPH) is issuing this notification to inform clinicians of a change in recommended reference materials for pediatric immunization schedules.

DPH has a longstanding and ongoing commitment to promoting evidence-based immunization practices that protect communities from vaccine preventable illnesses. Following a review of recent changes to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) pediatric immunization schedule, DPH now recommends that clinicians in Massachusetts use the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) Recommended Child and Adolescent Immunization Schedule as the primary reference for the routine immunization of infants, children, and adolescents.

DPH recognizes the importance of clear, consistent, and evidence-based guidance to facilitate safe and effective vaccination practices. AAP is a national professional organization representing pediatric physicians, and its immunization schedule is developed by pediatric experts and updated regularly to reflect current evidence and clinical best practices for immunizing children and adolescents. The AAP immunization schedule aligns with science-backed pediatric standards of care and provides detailed guidance that supports clinical decision-making in pediatric settings.

Clinicians should continue to follow all applicable state requirements, including the immunization requirements for school and camp entry (aligned with AAP recommendations), and reporting obligations, including documentation of administered immunizations in the Massachusetts Immunization Information System (MIIS).

DPH will continue to monitor national immunization policy updates and will communicate any additional guidance as needed.

WARWICK Town Hall Tuesday January 20th at noon, wellness clinic with our Public Health Nurse following the senior lunch

WARWICK Library Tuesday January 20th at 7pm, Blood Pressure and Heart Health presentation with our Public Health Nurse to launch their libraries with heart initiative.

WARWICK Library Monthly Short Story Hour - James Herriot, Jan. 22nd @ 7:30 pm: We'll read selections from Every Living Thing (2025), the fifth and final book in James Herriot's beloved series of memoirs about his life as a veterinarian in the Yorkshire Dales of England, published in 1992. This will be one of our occasional forays into non-fiction (though in the end, who can say what's truly fictitious—or not?). Come to read or just to listen.

WARWICK Library Lego Club returns! Sat. Jan. 24th - 10-11:30 am: Open to families with kids of all ages, including infants and toddlers! Legos are provided. Please note: This is not a drop-off program: Stay and play with your kids!

WENDELL Library Saturday January 24, 1-3 p.m.: Blood Pressure and Healthy Heart Workshop. Learn the Basics of Blood Pressure and Heart Health with the North Quabbin Health Collaborative as they introduce their new effort "Libraries with Heart". As part of this initiative the Wendell Free Library is working with the American Heart Association to provide 3 blood pressure cuffs available to lend by the library as part of our "Library of Things" Collection.

WARWICK Library Author visit & Kid's program w/Louise Wannier - Sunday, Jan. 25th @ 1 pm: Author and environmental advocate Louise Wannier will read from her book series, Tree Spirits—an interactive picture book series for children ages 4-9. The reading will be followed by a fun, creative leave-behind activity. Louise is passionate about helping children connect with the natural world and each other. Through her engaging, hands-on presentations, she creates space for empathy, imagination, and meaningful conversations that nurture social-emotional growth.

WENDELL Library Saturday January 31: Jigsaw Puzzle Swap. 12-2 p.m.

WENDELL Library Tuesday February 3 at 6:30-8 pm: Community Resiliency. Please join Axis Lloyd and Clarence Richardson to talk and strategize about community resilience as a whole and what that looks like in Wendell.

WENDELL Library Friday Feb. 13 at 6:30 p.m. "Deforestation, climate, and the future of the Amazon." with Chris Neill. The Amazon rainforest covers parts of nine countries in South America and is the Earth's largest tropical forest. Across these nations, Amazon loses an area of forest equivalent to more than half the area of Massachusetts each year. The majority of existing forest, and forest loss, occur in Brazil. Clearing, for both small holder and industrial-scale agriculture, is the main driver of forest loss. However, longer dry seasons, increasing droughts, and more fire now contribute to widespread degradation of forests that threaten to "savannaize" large areas of remaining forests. Chris Neill has been studying the environmental consequences of deforestation and agricultural expansion in Brazil since 1992. Chris will talk about recent changes to Amazon agriculture, deforestation and climate and some of the interesting ways in which scientists investigate the consequences of deforestation and the effects of fire and drought on remaining forest. He will discuss how these interacting forces will likely affect the future of Amazon forests and what forest protection policies could best slow deforestation and forest degradation. Chris Neill is a Senior Scientist at the Woodwell Climate Research Center in Falmouth. He studies natural and restored ecosystems around the globe. He is interested in how changes in land use affect ecosystem function, particularly water and nutrient cycling, and our ability to restore impaired systems.

WENDELL Library Tuesday February 20 at 6:30 p.m.: Smartphone Skills: Get More From Your Phone. Beginner-friendly workshop for Android and iPhone users. Learn to adjust settings, use voice typing, navigate maps, and download helpful apps. Bring your phone and questions! Please register.

WENDELL Library Saturday March 28 1-4 p.m. Silk Magic Colors & Flowers: Silk painting Workshop with Lidia of SimpleArtForms: Explore your creative side and experiment with colors without fear of making a mistake. Come join this easy, magical, and relaxing adventure into the world of freedom and creativity, after which you will get a masterpiece created by your own hands. During this master class, you will tap into your creativity and grow your unique flower. Funded by a grant from the Wendell Cultural Council. 12 spots available, please register.
